WORLD RACE TO GIRL FOR WAR YEAR ENDS

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Dec. 31.—Thunder of guns in Spain, the rattle of riveters in shipyards and the roar of forges in munitions plants as nations made ready for the "next war," were the world's farewell today to the old year.

Expiration of the Washington and London naval treaties at midnight will loosen sea powers from their only limitations on size of navies and with Britain leading off, seven nations by the dawn of Jan. 1 will be off on what may be his- tory's greatest naval race.

Britain had a head start, for the materials and machinery for the two battlehips were laid out in fall to down tomorrow has been in process of receiving for months.

3 GIGANTIC SHIPS
With no new treaties in sight, the only limits on nations' navies are those of national treaties and the United States is the only country that can, without serious financial dedication, fulfill its determination to keep on at least a par with Britain and two-fifths ahead of Japan.

At the same time, the United States is building up its navy. The world is piling up arms and constantly increasing their combat armaments.

The first battlehips that Britain has started since 1918 are the George V and the Prince of Wales. Both are 35,000 tons, capable of 33 knots, and will be ready within less than two years for sea trials.

Germany, which has been preparing for a long time, has now started work on two 35,000-ton battlehips, two 10,000-ton cruisers, two 5,000-ton destroyers, and two 1,000-ton submarines.

Italy is concentrating on a light-weight navy, but at work on two 3,000-ton destroyers.

Soviet Russia recently announced the world with the announcement that she has now started work on two 10,000-ton destroyers, two 5,000-ton submarines, and two 1,000-ton submarines.

In addition, Britain is building

PROTECTED DENIS BAREIN IN GRAFT PROBE

LINK SOLOMON AID
It is a number of the facts was threatened with death by two New York white slavers who he aided in getting their girls into a certain apartment.

His purpose, it is said, was to establish this place as a secret office to which new girls would be sent from time to time while those previously employed there would be moved on to other cities.

His mother is also said to have received protection as well as illicit liquor selling. A former associate of the late "King" Brodinsky is described as enjoying himself in the town, devoted to the interests of the underworld.

One policeman is said to have bank deposits aggregating $20,000 in various investments amounting to $10,000.

U. S. PROBE HINTED
U. S. Attorney Francis J. W. Ford today announced that he will step into the investigation if the alleged bookkeeping office is to have been a federal offense.

"If there is evidence that any person has been involved in the taking of bribes, there will be an investigation by the U. S. grand jury," he said.

Protection given any Brodinsky associate as having been on the side of the state were employed for the purpose of the investigation.

A crime coming under the federal jurisdiction, it was explained.

At present, Boston, where the case is being handled, is mentioned many times in telephone calls to which federal agents listened.

Several lawyers were also named as being extensively the subject of the Boston underworld characters who took part in the telephone conversations.

Brodinsky, doctor, with a license to practice, was also named in the conversations, according to the federal report as the subject of a regular income from employees of white-slave groups.

300 SEND LETTERS
Dwelling recently that he has received more than 200 letters from Brodinsky residents about conditions either suspected or known to be involved in the investigation, he said.

He said that he was not a part of the town's selection.

"If there is any need of a book in this thing," the district attorney stated, "my office has no objection to it, but I do not intend to be before, to warrant one in the investigation, as having been common a special session of the grand jury, as having been common a special session of the grand jury, as having been common a special session of the grand jury."

"I will say that I will not call a special session before next week. This investigation is one that requires painstaking work."

"HELL, HEAVENLY"
Because 16-year-old Margaret, one of the central figures in the investigation, was brought here last Monday from the city of New York, where she has been under federal guard.

It is believed that during her stay in the city, she will be kept under guard, and that she will be kept under guard, and that she will be kept under guard.

Read the directions with the book above.

Then turn to another page and read the book above.

And do it NOW!

Among the telephone conversations reported by the federal agents, it was revealed that between Brodinsky and a woman named "Mabel," who was a white-slave in that town.

State department officials said that at least four apartments have been used for immoral purposes.

ADVICE in LOVE and MARRIAGE

Good New Year Resolution Often the Salvation of Unhappy Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

New Year's is the time for resolutions—a few to be kept; the others, by far the majority, to be broken. Year after year the promising goes on. We resolve never again to touch liquor. We take anew the pledge to always attend church services. Our automobile will be driven at slow, leisurely speeds. These and a hundred other good purposes we adopt and sincerely desire to make a part of our future lives.

But, somehow, the good purposes fall by the wayside as we enter upon the New Year. And February, usually, finds us the sinners we were in December.

Yet, old and experienced as I am, I still preserve an alibi—my faith in New Year's resolutions, especially those that apply to matrimony. Never was there a better time for the drinking husband to reform or the erring wife to determine to become a good woman.

It is just as easy to start 1937 with a clean slate, and, although some assistance may be required in keeping it clear, the window is wide open for the good purposes.

Dear readers, instead of starting the New Year with the old purpose drinking and erring, why not give an hour to self-examination? Decide if you will change the other fellow. Think rather of yourself and what you did or did not do to make the world, particularly that part of it in which you move, a better place for everybody.

And in the morning, rather than hangover, discussing child and pet, stomach, you will be able to leave your home happy and well. Individually.

What is more, you will find not only what is necessary to successful marriage, but also the requisites of a happy and successful life.

Above all, don't take 20 resolutions, every one of which you intend to make a single good one. AND PUT ALL YOUR MIGHT INTO THE FIRST ONE TO GET IT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: My wife was a spoiled only child of a very well-to-do family. When she married me her people considered the day as the end of the world. I kept right on with the spoiling, giving her everything before I went to work, and serving her in my bed.

When I'd return after a hard day's work, she'd say she didn't feel well enough to get supper. Then I would discover she had spent her day in the kitchen, looking around slops, and winding up with a cocktail party.

When my mother and sisters would come to the house, they'd see I was the husband of a spoiled girl.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX: We are most warmly engaged, but have what is known as an understanding. He gets a $12 in his salary; we intend to be married.

It seems queer to me that his family have never called on me or taken any notice of me, when yet they know I am with him, because they have seen us together at the theater, club house and at parties.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Shall I cut the throat knot, and sell for the PERPLEXED DEAR CHILD?

Being single should always come from the man's family to the girl is in mourning. And if she has not come to date, it might be interpreted that they do not regard the boy's attention as so serious, or perhaps they think of her as young, or that she may be some other reason why they do not wish to put the stamp of their approval on your fiancée.

Under the circumstances, it might be embarrassing for you to call BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: As a regular reader of your column, I was interested in an expression from you in her terms, saying that she disliked being "mistaken for" a married woman.

The article was signed E. R. and she seemed to have the idea that her unwillingness to get a divorce was for her popularity. Not at all. I am a married woman.

I imagine a good many girls are too apt to blame their lack of popularity upon what they will. I WOULD TRY TO DO. A fellow attitude toward getting married is to say "I am not interested in a husband."

DEAR BOB: I am a girl, the young, dear H. R. I always have been in love with a girl, and she has been in love with me. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX: I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time.

'Gibson Girl' Influence

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 515

A busy morning of chores ahead. . . . Breakfast to get. . . . Kiddies to see off to school. What to wear that's comfy, full of 'action room' yet smart and pretty at the same time?

Here's the answer—a truly flattering frock, designed by Marian Martin for clever, efficient housewives. It's a wrap-around, of course, fashioned on the popular shirt-waist line, buttoned into place in a jiffy—and best of all, easy to make!

In fact, you'll find Pattern 515 so easy to make and so stylish, you'll be glad to do it.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX: We are most warmly engaged, but have what is known as an understanding. He gets a $12 in his salary; we intend to be married.

It seems queer to me that his family have never called on me or taken any notice of me, when yet they know I am with him, because they have seen us together at the theater, club house and at parties.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Shall I cut the throat knot, and sell for the PERPLEXED DEAR CHILD?

Being single should always come from the man's family to the girl is in mourning. And if she has not come to date, it might be interpreted that they do not regard the boy's attention as so serious, or perhaps they think of her as young, or that she may be some other reason why they do not wish to put the stamp of their approval on your fiancée.

Under the circumstances, it might be embarrassing for you to call BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: As a regular reader of your column, I was interested in an expression from you in her terms, saying that she disliked being "mistaken for" a married woman.

The article was signed E. R. and she seemed to have the idea that her unwillingness to get a divorce was for her popularity. Not at all. I am a married woman.

I imagine a good many girls are too apt to blame their lack of popularity upon what they will. I WOULD TRY TO DO. A fellow attitude toward getting married is to say "I am not interested in a husband."

DEAR BOB: I am a girl, the young, dear H. R. I always have been in love with a girl, and she has been in love with me. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX: I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time.

Rinses Give Delicate Tints

BY DONNA GRACE

ONE OF the unrecorded days in a young girl's life is that when she ventures upon the fascinating process of enhancing her own beauty for the first time.

It is thrown in the present by the thrill of rapid achievement and past history is tossed into the lap of experience. Change of color and appearance is then a matter of moments, and the matter of amateur seers never to have been so sure.

If one is wise, and the usually is, she will try all phases of artificial beauty. Not only will she dab in the arts of facial makeup, but her hair will be destined to change, taking on new luster and even delicate tints.

Natural blondes may be satisfied for a while, at least, but will soon enough, but even those who are not so fortunate will find the urge to use some of the bright colors, and "some of the bright" colors are really beautiful.

These bright rinses are seldom of the kind that change the color of the hair to a shade which is very noticeable at first, but continued application will make quite a difference in the color, especially the ends.

Girls who really feel they have never given a touch to the hair at all will find the ends of the hair turned to a dry, light blonde, while the top of the head retains almost its natural color.

When the rinses are applied, they run to the ends of the hair at once and the result is even bleached ends.

The directions for use on nearly all of the rinses is to pour them over the head as a final rinse. That is correct for the first time, but if they are used frequently they should be applied on the ends of the hair only. The ends will retain the bleached tone, and the rest of the hair will keep them light.

Blond hair and the hair on top of the head may be spotted often or whenever it is necessary to match them with the ends.

Blond hair, if you wish, Emma, I am a married woman. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time. I have been in love with her for a long time, and she has been in love with me for a long time.

There are two main types of Chlamydia infection: C. trachomatis and C. pneumoniae. C. trachomatis is the most common cause of chlamydia infection, and is responsible for most cases of chlamydia. C. pneumoniae is a less common cause of chlamydia infection, and is responsible for a smaller proportion of cases. Both types of Chlamydia infection can cause a range of symptoms, including discharge from the penis or vagina, pain or burning when urinating, and swollen lymph nodes. In some cases, the infection can spread to other parts of the body, such as the lungs or the joints. Chlamydia infection is a common sexually transmitted infection (STI), and it is important to get tested if you are sexually active. Chlamydia infection can be treated with antibiotics, and it is important to complete the full course of treatment to ensure that the infection is completely cleared. If you are diagnosed with chlamydia, it is important to tell your sexual partners so that they can also get tested and treated. Chlamydia infection can be a serious health problem if it is not treated, so it is important to get tested and treated if you are sexually active.

Recovery PACE STILL Strong

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The final week of 1936 finds business and industry in New England going forward to new highs and orders on hand in most directions indicate a continuation of present activity well into the first quarter of 1937.

New items received in Dun & Bradstreet's recent survey of conditions in New England show an increase with shoe production in Massachusetts the highlight.

Shoe manufacturers kept the pace first on the year of grinding away from the 1935 level of sales to $100,000,000. For New England as a whole shoe production for the year was at about $130,000,000. This represents a gain of more than 100 per cent over 1935 figures.

The second feature of Dun & Bradstreet's survey of conditions in New England is the increase in the shoe industry. From the low point of the previous year, shoe production in New England has risen to a level of 130 per cent above 1935 figures. This represents a gain of more than 100 per cent over 1935 figures.

GOVERNMENTS

Stock prices rose and a full rally. It is not unusual that after a period of relative calm, a full rally should occur. This is particularly true in the case of the stock market, which has been the most active in the region.

LAUNCH New Economic IDEA STUDY MAY BE RE-SHAPED

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUCKESER
Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Perhaps the most significant event at the three-day pop-wow of the nation's economic savants here was the offering yesterday of a new and better tool for visualizing the totality of the economic activities of the American people.

An economist and a compiler of a business directory had assembled a whole lot of the key to better understanding of the economic process lay in improved national bookkeeping.

A national business sheet and income account statement, prepared as a significant new business and statistical method, was presented to the American statistical society as a device to help business men and public officials to promote general welfare in the United States.

INDIVIDUALS. Through the launching of this new and improved business sheet, the economist suggested that the key to better understanding of the economic process lay in improved national bookkeeping.

The economist, the application of private accounting principles to public affairs, realized that a leading New York statistician, and the economist of Washington in the office of the Federal Reserve Board, had been working on this project.

INDIVIDUALS. Through the launching of this new and improved business sheet, the economist suggested that the key to better understanding of the economic process lay in improved national bookkeeping.

U. S. TAGGING. Assuming that the United States and England had agreed to tag and label all goods and services, the economist suggested that the key to better understanding of the economic process lay in improved national bookkeeping.

Industrial Revival in New England

The First National Bank of Boston, Inc., New England's largest financial institution, has announced that it has received a $100,000 loan from the Federal Reserve Board to help it in its efforts to revive the New England economy.

HANEY REVIEWS YEAR

Business on Upswing AS U. S. SURVIVES Dictatorship Threats

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Dec. 31.—Probably the year 1936 will go down in history as one in which democracy and internationalism survived the threat that Communism and Fascist dictatorships might dominate.

Accordingly, the principle of the gold standard was preserved. Unfortunately, the immediate effect was to reduce and make effective the huge potential inflation that had been built up by deficit financing during the depression.

When the United States, the year was notable for relatively sharp and sustained advances in both business activity and commodity prices.

The joint and parallel upward swing of industrial activity and prices in the second half of the year is especially significant as indicating a trend toward recovery.

After a small dip in the first quarter, business activity rose sharply, with a more leveling in the fall. The movement showed more momentum than any in the past four years.

In reality, it seemed forward the recovery that was released in May, 1935, by the Supreme Court's decision against the National Recovery Administration, and which was confirmed by the decision against the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in January, 1936.

To this basis for greater confidence in our institutions was added such stimulants as heavy government relief spending, the huge subsidies, home distribution and the announcement of vast dividend and bonus payments by corporations, the last under pressure from the New Deal tax undistributed surpluses.

In the second half, rising prices began a notable forward buying movement. The growing fear of labor dispute had a similar effect on spending.

Fortunately, industrial activity showed improved balance, especially with respect to capital goods. Machinery was in strong demand, and the iron and steel industry boomed.

A sharp rise in the long demand for railway equipment in December marked the last few months. Bond issues to raise new capital appeared.

An outstanding achievement was the way in which wholesale commodity prices soared in the last quarter. The upper confidence level which had prevailed for three years was broken through.

With "sensitive" industrial commodities—iron, steel, copper, hides, with cotton goods, etc.—in the lead, price averages rose to the highest levels since 1930.

The severe drought affected farm prices, but the general advances rested upon widespread war preparations, the stabilization of foreign exchange rates, and a widespread confidence. These made up for the depressed activity of the year.

Despite a falling market in money money rates, the "easy money" policy was effective all year. Government borrowing and spending showed little change.

Bank deposits showed a further huge increase, while "excess reserves" grew so large that reserve requirements were increased 50 per cent in August.

But gold continued to flow into the country and the government continued to spend, as the inflation of bank credit went on. The main point is that deposits at the disposal of corporations and individuals were enormously swollen by the government's financial policies, and made new loans readily throughout the year.

Loans, on the other hand, though increasing, remained very low. Yet the government continued to take along business of revolving loans, while pointing its own growing debt into the bank deposits of its citizens so that they did not need to borrow.

The prolonged inflow of gold had two main causes: (1) The under-valuation of the paper dollar, and (2) the relatively unattractive conditions in Europe. We sold dollars cheaply to people who would have gladly paid more.

In the meantime, the Tripartite agreement, which attended the devaluation of the French franc is significant. It assures foreigners that they can now get dollars for their money.

At the same time, it probably marks the end of the "devaluation" era among nations.

This has had much to do with making currency depreciation effective in rising prices. Both have aid in England.

Last, but not least, 1936 was the year of the President Roosevelt. This means a mandate to continue the policy of government promise of "security" to all people.

It means continued experiments, and failures, in "social planning," and attempts to pay the bills by "managing" the currency, including bank credit.

Incidentally, attending the Roosevelt victory, the sinister figure of John Lewis emerged as leader of a movement to establish a labor party in American politics.

Yet, without, the year 1936 ends more hopefully than any since 1928.

N. E. Business RISE HOOK OPTIMIST FOR 1937

By Associated Press

James W. Hook, president of the New England Council, in a year-end statement issued today forecasted the 1937 New England business outlook as "the most promising in eight years."

"It does not appear too optimistic to forecast a New England business volume about 1937 approximately the levels of 1926, 1927 and early 1928, as related to an estimated normal," he said.

"If this works out it will mean that trade will exceed 1936 by about 10 per cent industrial activity will be from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1936 with commerce 10 per cent or more ahead of 1936."

A sustained recovery in business has been in progress since the spring of 1935 and seems likely to continue, the head of the business organization asserted.

The New England Council's index of business activity reached a level only 1 per cent below the level of 1929, which was the highest since 1929 when the index was 65 per cent.

INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT. Hook forecasted New England's industrial employment, now 2 per cent ahead of 1935 and predicted that the rate will continue to rise in 1937.

Hook said, "The industrial production, however, is still below the level of 1929, but the rate of increase is rapid and the outlook is bright for the year ahead."

"Another factor which is very likely to be of material effect in the re-employment of our workers," Hook said, "is the increasing demand for labor in the construction of new buildings and the supply of competent and skilled workers."

With active business absorbing the unemployed, Hook said, "The rate of increase in industrial activity will be from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1936 with commerce 10 per cent or more ahead of 1936."

The council president also forecasted that the rate of increase in industrial activity will be from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1936 with commerce 10 per cent or more ahead of 1936."

With active business absorbing the unemployed, Hook said, "The rate of increase in industrial activity will be from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1936 with commerce 10 per cent or more ahead of 1936."

The council president also forecasted that the rate of increase in industrial activity will be from 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1936 with commerce 10 per cent or more ahead of 1936."

Hook said, "The industrial production, however, is still below the level of 1929, but the rate of increase is rapid and the outlook is bright for the year ahead."

"Another factor which is very likely to be of material effect in the re-employment of our workers," Hook said, "is the increasing demand for labor in the construction of new buildings and the supply of competent and skilled workers."

Horton to Retire
Horton, 71, will retire January 1, 1937. He has been in the service of the company for 25 years.

Review Your Will
A will is seldom considered a final expression of one's wishes as long as the maker lives. Does your will fit conditions as they are today? Your family lawyer will tell you. He can also show you how to make any necessary changes.

Review Your Investments
Have changing conditions made it more difficult for you to invest your money safely and productively? This Company is fully qualified to care for your investments for you as Trustee, Agent or Custodian, at moderate cost.

Review Your Life Insurance
Life Insurance is an important factor in offsetting the increasing cost of estate settlement. Your life underwriter will be glad to review your present life insurance and help you determine the adequacy of its protection.

Review Your Taxes
New tax schedules on estates may necessitate adjustments in bequests you have made by will. It is advisable to determine without delay how your property will be affected by the higher inheritance tax schedules. Our officers specializing in taxation can help you do this.

Back in Boston
The Boston Trust Company has moved back to its old home in the City of Boston, 17 Court Street.

TOUR WINNERS TO BE NAMED MONDAY

The five judges of the Boston Evening American's Boston Improvement Year Competition today revealed that they expect to announce the 20 winners, 10 boys and 10 girls in Monday's edition of the Boston Evening American.

Because of the vast number of entries and the careful study of the 10 entries submitted by thousands of Massachusetts youth, the judges and the board of judges was delayed in making the awards.

If you were an entrant in the contest, seeking to win one of the coveted prizes, a trip to Washington and the opportunity of witnessing the President's New Year's celebration, you would have been disappointed. However, the judges, after a long and arduous task, have selected the winners.
